

Your Pet Had Entropion Surgery

Post-operative care guide for your pet

Your pet had surgery at the shelter to correct entropion — a condition where the eyelid rolls inward. This is a common and very treatable condition, and surgery gives most pets significant relief.

What to Expect

- Entropion is a condition where the eyelid rolls inward, causing the eyelashes and skin to rub against the eye. Surgery corrects the eyelid position.
- Mild swelling, bruising, and tenderness are normal for the first 24–48 hours.
- Swelling should gradually improve over the following 1–2 weeks as the eyelid position normalizes.

Home Care

- Apply eye drops or ointment exactly as directed — do not skip doses even if the eye looks better.
- The e-collar must stay on at all times when unsupervised.
- Keep the eye area dry — avoid baths, swimming, or water near the face.
- No rough play or activities that risk trauma to the head or face.

Contact Your Veterinarian If Your Pet Has:

- Increasing swelling, redness, or discharge after the first 48 hours
- Squinting, keeping the eye tightly closed, or signs of pain
- Cloudiness or a visible mark on the surface of the eye
- An eyelid that seems to be rolling in again

Follow-Up Care

Schedule a follow-up visit with your veterinarian within 10–14 days after surgery to assess healing and remove sutures if needed.

Refer to your discharge paperwork for specific medications and instructions.
