

Going Home with Allergy & Skin Medications

A guide for your dog's recovery at home

Your dog was treated for allergies and/or a skin infection while in our care at the shelter. The medications your dog received are listed in your adoption paperwork.

What to Expect

- Itching and redness should gradually improve over the next few days to weeks.
- Hair may take several weeks or months to grow back.
- Allergies are common and often require lifelong management. Flare-ups can happen, especially during certain seasons.

Medications

Antibiotics	Give the entire prescribed course, even if your dog's skin looks better.
Apoquel	Helps reduce itching but does not treat infections.
Cytopoint	An injection that controls itching for about 4–8 weeks. Repeat injections may be needed.
Medicated Shampoo & Flea Prevention	Help control skin irritation and prevent future flare-ups.

Always give medications exactly as directed.

Contact Your Veterinarian If Your Dog Has:

- Increased itching, licking, or scratching
- New redness, sores, scabs, or skin odor
- Hair loss in new areas
- Ear scratching, head shaking, or ear odor
- Vomiting, diarrhea, poor appetite, or other concerning side effects

Follow-Up Care

Schedule a follow-up visit with your veterinarian within 2–4 weeks after adoption, or sooner if your dog's skin worsens.

Bring your adoption paperwork so your veterinarian knows which medications were given.
